Art Blooms At the Marion Art Center

By Marilou Newell

The Marion Art Center is a well-known and much-loved cultural venue that over many decades has hosted light-hearted musicals to serious works of art and nearly everything in between. The building itself is a treasure – a historical and architectural gem in the heart of Marion.

On the evening of June 3, the center hosted a showing of abstract paintings by Susan Strauss of Westport and Allison Horvitz of Somerset. The two artists whose entire lives have been devoted to developing their understanding of and talent in visual arts shared the antique building's walls in what can only be described as superb expressions.

The colors used by each artist and the technique of applying layers of either acrylic or oil paints were in harmony, fully complimenting one another as few artists can hope to achieve. And although art is very subjective, these women have indeed created indisputable evocative beauty.

Strauss works primarily in oils and said of her work, "Gardening, growing things inspires me, pulling weeds from the garden, I find they are like a weaving." She continued, "The planting helps me find my way in the painting, painting is about finding a place in the painting

Horvitz shared, "My life is my work. My work is not about landscapes or flowers, it's an emotional reaction to my life." She said the layers of acrylic paint, which she scrapes out in places to create depth inside the canvas, are sculptural. Of her series of 'memory jars' of which she is particularly fond, she said, "People see what they want to see in them, not what I may have intended."

Marion Art Center Vice-President Cassy West said that professional artists must apply for the opportunity to have their works shown at the center.

"We have a museum jury that evaluates entries," she explained, adding that there is presently a two-year waiting list of artists whose works have been accepted for showing.

West said of the current exhibit that will be on view for the next few weeks, "This is a collaboration between the art center and the Marion Garden Group."

Throughout the space, floral arrangements had been created by members of the garden group inspired by the works of art at this event. Arrangements by garden group members Michelle Russell, Lissa Magauran, Wendy Bidstrup and Suzie Kokkins were positioned next to Strauss' and Horvitz's works, flowers and paintings creating a larger visual presentation of art in bloom, a local twist on a well known MFA event.

Of this evening's event West thought, "It's nice to have two Marion organizations coming together in a great collaboration."

On the second floor of the art center, a large space whose focal point is a grand piano against the far back wall above which hung one of Horvitz's "Jar" paintings, MAC President Shelley Richins talked about the upcoming comprehensive campaign they will be kicking off on July 15.

"It's very much a brick and mortar thing," Richins explained. Noting the need to modify the aging building for handicap accessibility, along with other structural improvements, she said, "Marion has an aging population, so making the building more accessible is very important." She said they would also be investing in new chairs for the theater space.

Richins also spoke of re-organization of the director's position at the art center. With the retirement of Deborah Bokelkamp in July, a new director will be named. But Richins said she'd be keeping that under wraps until a formal announcement is made to the members. Not unlike some of the stage productions at the MAC, there's a bit of mystery and intrigue to think about for a while.

of gum keeps its flavor the longest: regular or sugar-free? You can still be an adult and enjoy the sensory experience of making a model of a volcano spill and fizz by dumping a packet of Pop Rocks into it. And as Rochester Memorial School students demonstrated the evening of June 6 during the annual science fair, even kids can come up with solutions to global warming.

Meet the RMS students who put their minds together in the name of science to seek the answers to some of life's most phenomenal phenomena, like Brock, Andrew, and Zack, a trio of second-graders who set out to discover if the flavor lasts longer in sugarless gum or in regular gum.

"We asked second graders which flavor lasts the longest," said Brock. Twenty-eight guessed regular, while 27 guessed sugar-free gum. "I was surprised," Brock said when he found out that it was indeed sugarless gum that kept its flavor the longest.

Andrew thought it would be sugar-free, he chimed in, satisfied that his hypothesis was correct.

Just across the way, second grade student Madison Detrani was carefully pouring baking soda into the kortous (top) of a model volcano, and mixing vinegar with red dye and pouring it in. Next, she delighted in emptying a packet of cherry Pop Rocks into the mix to release a sizzling solution of fizzing lava down the sides of the volcano.

"It (the Pop Rocks) makes it have a bubbling sound," Detrani said.

Strolling through the cafetorium, one passed an abundance of 'sciency' secrets solved, as well as how the groups came up with the conclusions to their provocative questions. Can eggs bounce? (Yes, gently). What solution is best for keeping an apple slice from turning brown? (Lemon juice).

Blake Gagne, second grade, took another approach to his science project, setting out to solve one of the world's most pressing problems: saving the world from global warming.

Gagne explored the way animal flatulence creates methane gas that, in turn, contributes to climate change. He thought up a good way to effectively capture that methane gas before it escapes into the atmosphere. His preferred method was a "methane-capturing device" – a diaper, essentially, filled with coffee grounds.

Gagne displayed a photo of a cow wearing a crude form of a diaper, and he tested the method with his own dog, Chloe. He spent four hours observing his dog with her methane-capturing device tied around her bottom to capture her occasional bursts of methane. He not only tried filling it with coffee grounds, but he also tried charcoal, and found that both likely would do the job okay.

Chloe, Gagne said, was indeed very cooperative, and likely earned him a prize in the Science Fair.

"This is phenomenal," said RMS Principal Derek Medeiros. "This is the epitome of hands-on learning. This is what kids can get passionate about ... and it's great."

A Fully Imagined Life

This Mattapoisett Life

By Marilou Newell

As it turns out, Dad had a very active imagination. You'd never suspect that if you met him, attired as he always was in a uniform of matching Dickies work shirts and pants, argyle socks, and dark gum-soled shoes. He never left the house without a baseball cap or a winter cap, if the season required one. You wouldn't have thought him capable of brilliance or complex thinking; that blank look so hard to fathom never gave away his thoughts.

With a youth punctuated by third-grade education, near starvation, and a mere wooden shelter for a home, Dad must have learned everything he would come to know through sheer force of will and human thirst to survive.

In his young adult life, he never had much to say. Verbal expression was not his strong suit; yet his restless eyes pulled in everything, studied it all and stored away information against a day when it might be needed.

During the post war years of the '50s, Dad was little more than a shadow that appeared in the kitchen in the mornings and evenings, yet otherwise was missing in action. He was busy as any young father of two or three children would be, of course. There wasn't time to relax in the living room with his family, the ones for which he was working so hard to provide. I didn't know then that was his expression of love.

In the '60s, the strain of living seemed to catch up with him. A brooding, angry, depressed man replaced the earnest, but quiet, soul. I'd watch for a sign that an eruption was near at hand, but it never happened. He wasn't that type. Whatever grown-up struggles of finance, commerce, and marriage he was dealing with were foreign to me. He was just Dad. Best to give him a wide berth and go ride my bike.

There were strange happenings between him and Ma. The congested emotional highway they traveled was very loud, too loud, and filled with poisonous exhaust fumes that strangled us children. We hid in separate hiding places, made ourselves safe unto ourselves, or not, and never felt the comfort of parents or each other. Tiny islands being slowly eroded, dissolving into a sea of pain.

By the '70s, Dad had found some footing, but he continued his never-ending schedule of sleeping, eating, and working by the clock face. Time was money. Six a.m. breakfast. Noontime lunch. Five p.m. supper. Nine p.m. bedtime. Repeat, repeat, repeat.

Yet he had somehow become more animated, as if his own maturing somehow freed him a bit and conservation slowly began to develop into something you could engage in with him over a cup of instant coffee, but only if he was sitting at his kitchen table.

He spent a great deal of time completely alone in a house full of people.

During the late '70s and into the '80s, he was starting to show interest in the world outside his schedule. Dad pursued a hobby. He bought a camper, something my son and I became beneficiaries of when he drove west, alone, to collect us from the California dream that had become a nightmare. During those long, hot days in the Winnebago, across expanses of highway and wide-open skies, along old Route 66 and new interstates, on a schedule of 500 miles per day, he opened up to me.

All along there had been secret desires, losses, deep penetrating sorrows, hopes, and even dreams, always imaginative dreams of a future where comfort and plenty factored in heavily.

He was still Dad, but I was a woman by then, and in him I saw a man, a man who had tried, failed, and tried again because, simply put, that is what a man is supposed to do.

ESTATE PLANNING TRUST & ESTATE ADMINISTRATION

We rode home in hours of gentle silence, in hours of unspoken understanding, in hours of seeing what I had not seen before. He spoke of his childhood, his parents, grandmother, hard work from a very early age, my mother. His inner life started to unveil itself in the confines of the cab's front seats and his imagination, I came to understand, had been his life preserver. These revelations became my inheritance.

I loved him because he had tried, because he had suffered, because he was my dad. In later years, our bond would be tested, but never broken.

After the life-altering fall, his collision with the wall at the bottom of the stairs when the cracked skull allowed his emotional life to drain out in a puddle on the floor, his imagination was fully actualized via frontal lobe injury. Dad would reveal so much more. Not all of it was easy to deal with, not all of it was the stuff of dinnertime happy banter, but there were times of laughter, even joy. The golden years for him produced treasure I now own.

When those final few weeks of living became too tricky for him to manage even with help, when living and thinking and dreaming and imagination converged in a raging river of impossible behavior, I mourned. Now would come the time when losing him, saying goodbye, would be an eternal process for me. I could let go of the physical old body that lie in the nursing home bed, rigid joints, gasping, and then, easy from medication mercifully administered, a soft rush of air and gone. I could let go of that body, but not of Dad.

We are forced to say goodbye. It is natural, although we are often loath to accept that reality. We are left, if we are lucky, with something peaceful and good to enjoy until our own unthinking arrives and the process is repeated and repeated again.

Dad did what a man of his era was supposed to do. He loved his family to his full ability, expected little or nothing in return, and hoped against hope that everything would be all right in the end.

Mattapoisett, but nothing yet has confirmed the presence of a bear in the area, at least according to Animal Control Officer Kathy Massey.

"I haven't seen it," said Massey on June 6. She suspects that residents might have possibly mistaken a large fisher cat for a bear. She recalled an incident in the past when she received a call about a bear up in a resident's tree and arrived to find a fisher cat instead. "I could see how they would think that it was a bear. Some fisher cats get to a pretty good size."

Carly Lavin of Mattapoisett was out for a walk with her two small children just before noon on May 31 when she spotted what she thinks was a black bear in the field on River Road by Riverside Drive.

"We might have disturbed a little nap he or she was taking in the field," said Lavin. "It popped its head up ... and then it turned and high-tailed it right to the forest."

Lavin said she had never seen a bear in the wild in the past, and she had never seen a fisher cat, either. Looking at a photo of a fisher cat, she stated, "I'm pretty sure it was a bear ... but it could be [a fisher cat]. We'll be keeping an eye on things here."

Back in July and August of 2011, a young black bear was spotted in several locations throughout Tri-Town and also in Plymouth, but he hasn't turned up in the meantime. Massey said that during those months, she sometimes received a number of phone calls daily from nervous residents reporting bear sighting, but this month so far, she hasn't received a single call.

"The last time we had a bear, I got calls up the wazoo," said Massey. "The last time the bear was here, I got a call sometimes three or four times a day. I've got nothing this time...."

The lack of calls this time around leads Massey to question the validity of the bear sightings, leaning more towards a fisher cat with its long tail hidden from view.

Massey said in 2011 there was likely more than one bear, since she and an animal control officer from a neighboring town were both on the phone in separate locations reporting their own separate bear sightings to each other live.

"This week, I called Rochester to see if she's gotten any calls," said Massey. Nope, not yet....

At this time, Massey doesn't want the public to panic at the thought of a bear roaming around the area. After all, the bear is much more afraid of you than you of it.

"Could it be here? Sure," said Massey. "Is it here? I can't say."

If you ever see a bear on your property, keep calm and simply make a lot of noise to scare it off. They aren't there for your chickens, Massey said, and they aren't prone to "killing things."

At this time, there is no definitive confirmation of the presence of a bear returning to Tri-Town but, in the meantime, keep your trash barrels secured, said Massey, because the area has a lot of other wild animals that could cause a lot more trouble than a lonely bear.

Sewer Rates to Increase Significantly

Marion Board of Selectmen

By Jean Perry

Sewer users in Marion will see a significant increase in their sewer bills come this next fiscal year after the Marion Board of Selectmen on June 7 approved the recommendation to increase the rates set by the Water / Sewer Rate Committee.

Finance Director Judith Mooney said a 2.5% base sewer rate hike was simply not enough to cover the cost of future debt related to the sewer treatment plant and the almost $1 million appropriated at Town Meeting for ongoing engineering costs for sewer plant upgrades.

Tier 1 sewer users, which Mooney said includes roughly 85-90% of residents, will see about a 4% increase in their bill. An average household of 2.5 people could see an increase of about $42.30 annually.

Tier 2 users, the scenario being a home of five occupants, will see a $197.30 average increase annually. Tier 3, of which Mooney said there are only limited users, will see an average annual increase of roughly $514.

We feel this [scenario] is the best," said Mooney. "It meets the revenues. It helps out with the fixed income [households]..."

This sewer rate increase is mainly driven by the imminent National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) permit renewal that calls for a number of costly upgrades to the existing wastewater treatment plant.

"It's a definite. You'll see another increase next year," said Mooney. "How much? ... Right now, we're concentrating on fiscal year [2017]."

Water rates will see a slight increase of 2.5%, leading to an average increase of $3.92 for the year for Tier 1. Mooney said residents have asked her recently how much one gallon costs, which Mooney said is less than one cent.

In other matters, selectmen approved Police Chief Lincoln Miller's request to hire a full-time officer to make up for a vacant full-time shift currently covered by part-time officers that may be leaving for full-time positions in other towns, and a full-time shift left vacant by an injured officer out of work for a number of months.

"The coverage for that has cost us considerable overtime," said Chief Miller. "We are using a lot of overtime and to get an officer up and sent to police academy is twenty-two weeks."

Miller said he was not looking for a specific appointment that night, simply a vote of support for his recommendation, which he received unanimously.

"I just want to be able to make an actual offer when the time is right," Miller said.

Also during the meeting, selectmen gave Shea Doonan approval to move forward with the process of acquiring an aquaculture license.

Doonan had initially sought an aquaculture license for a site off Ram Island, but the state denied the license due to the presence of eelgrass.

Shellfish Officer Adam Murphy recommended that the selectmen approve this first step in the process.

"This site looks good; however, we didn't do a dive survey," said Murphy. A representative from the Massachusetts Division of Marine Fisheries was present, Murphy said, who gave a nod to the site, but nothing is certain until the survey is complete.

The site is used for recreational purposes, such as kayaks and paddleboards, Murphy said, "But it doesn't appear to impede any of the navigation."

The matter will require a public hearing in the near future, and the Marion Conservation Commission will also hold a public hearing of its own to approve the project.

Selectmen also approved the appointment of Harold Terpenney as assistant harbormaster / shellfish officer. Harbormaster Isaac Perry said Terpenney was a participant in the Old Rochester Regional High School "School to Work Program" and has demonstrated a remarkable ability and eagerness to learn. Selectman Stephen Gonsalves vouched for Terpenney as well, saying he was a neighbor who is "respectful" and "responsible."

In other matters, after a brief discussion, the board decided that it would make sense to apply for a grant for a second and a third electric car to add to the town's fleet.

On another note, selectmen commented on the recent banning of smoking at Silvershell Beach as per the Board of Health. The designated smoking section, which the Board of Health noted was in a poor spot located right at the edge of the beach, will be removed as a result of updated smoking regulations that prohibit smoking in public spaces and work places in Marion.

Board of Selectmen Chairman and Recreation Director Jody Dickerson pointed out that the Board of Health initially chose that particular spot for the designated smoking section three years ago.

Selectmen did not appear thrilled with the complete ban of smoking in public.

"Does that include public sidewalks?" asked

Selectman Stephen Cushing. "How far does this go?"

"I think it's gone far enough," said Selectman Steve Gonsalves.

"I think we go a little too far sometimes when it comes to the regulations," said Cushing, referring to the new regulations as a "kneejerk reaction."

Cavanaugh, a schoolteacher employed by the Town of Rochester, will retire from her teaching position this year and, as Cavanaugh explained, will also be retiring from the Board of Assessors as an essential act to collect her pension.

"In order to receive my pension, I would have to retire (from the Board of Assessors)," said Cavanaugh.

Selectmen Chairman Naida Parker explained in a follow-up interview that Cavanaugh, in order to collect her teaching pension, cannot continue as an employee of the town in the capacity of a compensated member of the Board of Assessors.

"To collect her pension, she has to break employment with the town," said Parker. "You can't retire and still be an employee of the town."

Parker furthermore stated that Cavanaugh, once effectively retired from her teaching position and Board of Assessors position on June 30, will likely seek appointment to the Board of Assessors on July 1. At that point, Cavanaugh's membership on the Board of Assessors would no longer be a position that pays into the retirement fund. Upon the next election cycle, Cavanaugh would again have to run as a candidate for the Board of Assessors.

Although Cavanaugh has not formally stated this intention to seek appointment or run in the next election, Parker said the move would make sense.

In the meantime, said Parker, anyone else in town interested in an appointment to the Board of Assessors, which pays a stipend of just over $6,000 annually, should submit a letter of interest to the Board of Selectmen. Selectmen, as well as the Finance Committee and the other members of the Board of Assessors, would approve the appointment of the new member.

The next meeting of the Rochester Board of Selectmen is scheduled for June 13 at 6:00 pm at Rochester Memorial School before the Special Town Meeting at 6:45 pm.

residents Gail Carlson and Dennis Dimos once again sat in front of the board members to air their concerns and seek assistance.

Carlson said that a planned mail kiosk is in the wrong location and that the former developer, Joseph Furtado, had promised it would be moved. The current location will create a driving hazard, she said.

But before they could finish that line item in a long list of promises that have been made yet not satisfied, Dimos said work on Phase 2 – referred to as “the back” – has been taking place for the last three weeks while little or nothing was being done on Phase 1.

Chairman Tom Tucker appeared unsatisfied.

“They are not to do anything in the back!” Tucker stated with controlled frustration.

Tucker said that he had not been able to participate in the May 16 meeting, at which time the new development team of Mark Marcos and Armand Cortelleso appeared before the board. At that meeting, they agreed to provide as-built plans and to work with the town’s engineering team headed up by Ken Motta of Field Engineering, but they were not given permission to move forward with Phase 2. Also weighing in the balance is a previously negotiated tri-party agreement. However, with the withdrawal of Furtado from the project, that agreement is most likely null and void.

“Mark Marcos refuses to speak to anyone,” Carlson said. “He’s playing hardball and saying he’s going to go by the plans, but Joe (Furtado) said he'd fix things."

Carlson said that Marcos is moving forward executing work to an old plan that doesn't take into consideration incorrect construction that has already taken place on Phase 1.

Dimos inserted, "They were out there at six o'clock in the morning! Suddenly, a contractor came up to us and said, 'We need to put conduits through your front yard.'"

Carlson said Marcos had commented to her that, "We are done with the Planning Board."

Tucker said, "Oh yeah? I spoke to Mark Marcos on the phone and he said he knew not to go back there."

Highway Surveyor Barry Denham told Tucker, "I didn't know they weren't supposed to start working on Phase 2." He said they needed to get answers from Field Engineering regarding confirmation of work completed and incomplete on Phase 1, but that Motta was having a hard time getting answers.

"We are on our third ownership. This is getting ridiculous!" Tucker said. "These guys are jerking us around."

Dimos asked, "Is there anything we can do to stop this so they will meet with us?"

Tucker instructed board member Nathan Ketchel to contact the town's attorney to request a cease and desist order. He said he would not be able to attend the next meeting due to his work schedule.

Looking at Carlson and Dimos, Tucker said, "Lip service needs to stop." He also told Dimos to "Call the police" if construction resumes before 7:00 am.

In other business, Alan Decker from the Buzzards Bay Coalition and Doug Schneider of N. Douglas Schneider & Associates, Inc. came before the board to request Form A determinations on several parcels, all part of land acquisitions recently made by the town and the coalition for protection of the Mattapoissett River aquifer, along with text changes on the plans to ensure protection of the lands into perpetuity. Those requests were approved.

Also seeking a Form A not required determination was Mike Esposito, 18 and 20 Ned's Point Road, to convey an unbuildable parcel from number 20 to number 18, putting legal access to a pier into number 18 exclusively. Esposito owns both properties. His request was approved.

Enforcement Order Issued to Wellspring Farm

Rochester Conservation Commission

By Marilou Newell

Wellspring Farm located at 42 Hiller Road in Rochester was cited on June 7 for encroaching and altering wetlands by storing a massive manure pile – a pile that has grown to a whopping quarter-acre as high as 10 feet over the past 20 years.

Jim and Gretchen Vogel have been operating a therapeutic riding center at this location for years. The center provides outdoor activities for children and young adults with autism, as well as cognitive and behavioral challenges. The program features the use of horses and donkeys, animals whose daily output is not only companionship and positive experiences for the clients but also, naturally, manure.

Conservation Agent Laurell Farinon explained to the Rochester Conservation Commission that on Friday, June 3, she received several complaints that activity was taking place in wetlands on the Vogels' property. One complaint came from an unnamed neighbor and another from the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection who had also received a complaint.

Farinon contacted the town's legal counsel, Blair Bailey, for guidance on how to proceed. She also explained that due to the notifications coming late in the afternoon on a Friday, there was insufficient time to list the complaint as a public hearing for the June 7 Conservation Commission meeting, so she instead listed it under new business, which Bailey advised was acceptable.

On Monday, June 6, Farinon made a site visit to Wellspring Farm and found the massive manure pile and an additional open paddock area that was breaching jurisdictional areas. In total, she estimated that 20,000 square-feet of wetlands had been affected.

"This is not to be taken lightly," Farinon said.

Farinon presented the commissioners with a drafted enforcement order that had been penned with the assistance of legal counsel.

The Vogels were present and quietly listened to the proceedings, asking for the commission's assistance to repair the damage that had been done.

Discussion about the best practices for removing the manure from the property while managing the ongoing hourly output of the animals was pondered. Mr. Vogel was told he needed to work with an environmental scientist to delineate and repair the wooded swampland.

The enforcement order requires that Vogel remove the offending excrement, cease and desist adding more to the pile, get the wetlands delineated, and develop a restoration plan that will return the wetlands to their original condition.

Farinon said there aren't any regulations on the amount of manure that can be held on farm properties, and that Rochester did not have, but needed, a "manure bylaw."

The Vogels have until July 19 to satisfy the enforcement mandates.

A public hearing was held for Jonathan Rezendes' RDA filing for 405 County Road to remove a garage and return the area to a grassed space for family use. The request received a Negative determination.

A public hearing was also held for a RDA filing from the Town of Rochester Highway Department for the repair and installation of a catch basin located approximately at 75 Hartley Road situated within a 100-foot buffer zone. After discussions that included possible ways to manage stormwater in this high flow location, the hearing was continued.

The next meeting of the Rochester Conservation Commission is scheduled for Wednesday, June 22, at 7:00 pm in the Rochester Town Hall meeting room.

prior notification and ask questions, raise concerns, or anything else," she explained. "It will be on a trial basis, and if nobody shows up, then we can just move on to the rest of the agenda. But it's a dedicated slot to allow us to communicate with town residents."

The board resoundingly agreed to implement Francis' idea.

"Thank you for that, Jen," Chairman Robert Lane said, "I think that's really a great idea."

Scrutiny soon arose from the board regarding the Clean Energy Collective solar farm located off Tucker Lane. A tree-clearing crew had overcut several plants and trees in front of the Tucker Lane location.

Board member Michael Popitz said, "Tucker Lane occupants are afraid of a loss of value on their homes and a loss of enjoyment of their property. I see it as our duty to make sure those are protected." He continued, "I've gone to the site many times. I've spoken to the inhabitants. One-hundred percent of the people I spoke to were extremely upset; they don't want to see a scar left from the overcutting. I feel personally responsible, and I want to make sure nobody is affected by the solar farm." Popitz said it should be easy and inexpensive to fix, "and to my eyes it hasn't been done yet."

Eric Aubrey of M+W Group, the solar farm contractor, stepped in to explain what had happened on Tucker Lane.

"The tree contractors moved early to Tucker Lane, and they went ahead to remove trees before we met with Marion's Conservation Commission," said Aubrey. "We've since replaced the trees and brush. There are thirty-two bushes and also a few trees in place. We want to work with the town," he said, "but what we took down wouldn't have screened the solar farm from view anyway."

Planning Board member Steve Gonsalves seemed slightly incredulous.

"I know it was a mistake," Gonsalves said, "but the plantings are thirty-two plants in a big area. It doesn't look like anything was done, and that's what the people are feeling. It would've made a difference to plant larger things. I know you're making an effort, but the perceived effort is not there."

Francis took a different tack.

"The property could've been a building, it would've been a lot uglier," she stated. "That wouldn't have required visual screening at all. There's a paranoia about solar farms from people unfamiliar with them, when it could be so much worse."

Gonsalves disagreed.

"It's not a paranoia," said Gonsalves. "It's people living there not liking what they see."

Steve Kokkins added, "The aim isn't to restore the nature, because it wouldn't provide screening. The intent is to provide actual screening, and the timeframe should be reasonably short, as in a few months, and should be kept in mind in the plans."

Will Saltonstall summed up the board's stance, saying, "We don't need to go overboard, but the re-planting effort was undersized."

The board requested detailed elevation and aerial plans of the re-planting and screening effort, as well as a maintenance schedule and an estimate on when plant screening will actually be achieved by natural growth, by the next meeting of the Planning Board.

The next meeting of the Marion Planning Board will be held on Monday, June 20 at 7:00 pm at the Marion Town House.

the coming months to raise enough money to pay for the reinstatement of a part-time physical education position at Sippican School, a position that was cut in the FY2017 budget and will result in less PE time for students.

Sue Shannon, a parent and member of the Sippican School Council, approached the Marion School Committee on May 1, hoping for a nod to move forward with a community-driven fundraising effort, which Shannon called the "Sippican Student Initiative," to raise $30,000 before September 2016 to hire a part-time gym teacher for a "Healthy Marion Kids Campaign."

Shannon said Sippican School parents know "the value of playing and movement and exercise," so they went to Town Administrator Paul Dawson looking for the Town's blessing and a little guidance as to how to go about the process.

"And he (Dawson) saw no impediment from the Town in terms of that," said Shannon. "It seems like a do-able thing."

Shannon said the goal is to form a subcommittee of parents and community-at-large members to initiate the fundraising campaign via a GoFundMe account, as well as a proposal and "talking to Tabor," as Shannon put it. She also mentioned a sports "promotion day" to introduce students to sports and physical activities as a side project and to also get the community involved.

The question, however, is how does the group continue to fund the position annually and what will happen next year?

School Business Administrator Patrick Spencer advised Shannon that the group would have to set up a special fund with the Town, and all money must be raised before an employee is hired for the position.

"You have to have the money in place," said Spencer, including a contingency for Unemployment benefits. "The total number that we're looking at is more like $40,000."

And, if the total money raised falls short of that amount, Spencer said, "If we don't reach our goal, you have to return the money back to the donors."

Shannon asked if there could be a Plan B of sorts, stipulating that if not enough money was raised, could the money go towards a recess program offered through an organization called "Playworks."

"I think you're better off going out, seeing what you can do, and then come forth and say, 'We've got this amount of money, what can we do for the schools?'" said Superintendent Doug White.

School Committee member Christine Winters, concerned about the ramifications of the fundraising logistics as well as the hiring of an employee covered under collective bargaining, preferred White's suggested path forward. She added that the School Committee could hold a special meeting in August to review the progress of the fundraiser.

"That way we're not taking a vote tonight that ties your hands, either," said Winters.

School Committee Chairman Christine Marcolini thanked Shannon and the other parents for their efforts.

"We so appreciate it. We really do," said Marcolini. "You really stepped up as a member of the community ... and I really applaud you."

In other matters, Mike Feeney of the Massachusetts Department of Public Health gave a detailed presentation on the air quality testing performed in April at Sippican School.

"We're within parameters where we would say, 'Improve the ventilation,'" said Feeney. The measurements, he said, all were below the national standards.

Although no noxious gasses or environmental irritants were found in any significant amounts, one major concern was a crawl space below the floors of one of the wings of the school built in 1954. Feeney said condensation was present back in April so, in summer, he said, "I would not be surprised if this thing was just dripping with moisture.... It's because air can't get down there to help get the moisture out and to increase the temperature of the floor."

Feeney recommended, among other minor things, turning off the air conditioning during summer vacation months and ventilating crawl spaces. Blocked air vents within classrooms should also be cleared and the ventilation system further assessed.

This was the last meeting of the Marion School Committee for this school year. School committee meetings will resume in the fall.

A Farewell to the Class of 2016

ORR Update

By Sienna Wurl

Eighteen years of hard work and dedication to education boiled down to one two-hour ceremony on June 4 – the day seniors walked across the football field to proudly accept their diplomas.

The week before graduation was full of festivities and celebration for the seniors, kicking off with prom on Tuesday, May 31. Promenade began at 4:30 pm in the high school auditorium. The stage was decorated with sparkling strings of lights dangling from the ceiling, an arch draped with soft white fabric and lights, and an arrangement of leafy plants skirting the edges of the stage. Prom attendees paraded their elegant gowns and handsome tuxes in front of an audience so full that many people were forced to stand at the back of the auditorium.

After the conclusion of Promenade, students piled into party buses, limos, and personal cars to make the trip to the Biltmore Hotel in Providence, Rhode Island. Awaiting the students inside the hotel was a candy bar and a soda bar; dinner was a choice of either chicken with green beans and mashed potatoes, or mushroom ravioli. After a night of dancing, students returned to their vehicles to either go home or to an after-party.

The next big senior event was Awards Night, held on Thursday, June 2, in the high school auditorium. The soon-to-be-graduates entered, all wearing red caps and gowns as the band played “Pomp and Circumstance.” The night began immediately with the announcement of department awards and certificates from almost every class offered at ORR, with a total of over 50 awards being distributed. Students were recognized not only for their academic achievements, but also for achievements in the arts, community service, early childhood education, and much more.

After all of the awards were announced, ORR Principal Michael Devoll individually introduced each member of the class of 2016. He included their post-high school plans and any scholarships received, and he asked one personal question: “Who is your favorite teacher?” or “What advice would you give to your ninth grade self?” The latter question produced both serious and funny responses.

"The secret to dealing with stress is to break things up and stay calm" was Shawn Perreira's serious answer.

Samantha Lizotte took a more comical approach when she advised, "Do your makeup better and focus on algebra."

The night came to an end, and the graduates proceeded out, only to return to the school the next day.

Friday, June 3, was the last time the seniors would step foot in Old Rochester as students. After two shortened classes, the school community piled into the gym. Everyone rose to their feet as the seniors entered and the assembly began. Bailey Sweet, the senior class president, opened with a speech that thanked teachers and parents, as well as her fellow students in the senior class.

"We've had our crazy moments and our up and downs, but together we got through them all," said Sweet. "Thank you for this great year, and it was an honor to be your class president. I wish you all the best of luck."

Maggie Wiggin, senior class secretary, was next to speak as she recounted the class history, chronicling their rise from naive freshmen to top-dog seniors. The most important achievement of the senior class, according to Wiggin, was their ability to support one another.

"At the end of the day, we have all stuck together, and that is what has led us to today," she said.

Scattered throughout the assembly were 13 small performances by seniors. Highlights included original songs that were performed by student-created band Skinny Moth and the Prospect, as well as Isabella King, who plans to attend college for songwriting. Both the chorus and band performed for the last time with the seniors, and even the creative writing class all learned how to play the ukulele to sing "I'm Yours" by Jason Mraz together. The Bernardi twins – Isabella and Julianna – pulled out their guitar and banjo to play a beautiful cover of "I Will Follow You Into The Dark" by Death Cab for Cutie. The assembly highlighted the talents of the senior class.

Brooke Santos, the junior class president, gave a goodbye to the seniors on behalf of the underclassmen. Her speech focused on the bitter sweetness of leaving, and how the word 'last' was used this year by the senior class with the same bittersweet tone: the last physics test, the last time performing with my best friend on stage. But most importantly, she highlighted the hole left by the departure of the seniors.

"Walking into school this year won't feel the same way it has these past three years. It will feel like a part of this place is missing," said Santos. "Your talent and intelligence will be hard to lose, but not seeing you guys every day will be the toughest part. You inspired our school, and you made us better than we are, and I thank you for that." She wished the seniors well and reminded them that this community will always back them up. "Wherever you go and wherever you end up, just know you will always have us, this school, and this community to come back to."

The assembly came to a close when the senior slideshow, created by senior Kyle Costa, was shown, which included pictures and videos from the highlights of senior year. Costa, who will be going to college for filmmaking, was happy to create the slideshow.

"I felt so honored to make that video," Costa said. "It felt great to be a part of it and to make quality content and showcase what our class was like, and I'm going to miss this class so much." He continued, "I'm very honored that I got to give them that one last gift."

Seniors proceeded out and went on the first annual "Senior Walk," in which they processed through the Junior High, and took one of three buses to visit their old elementary schools for, presumably, the last time as students. The seniors really seemed to love the new tradition, as explained by Zenobia Nelles.

"The new senior walk is a really sweet idea and I think it's nice for the kids to remember where they came from and it puts the whole thing in perspective," said Nelles.

Natasha Shorrock felt similarly. "The senior walk was Finally, the day everyone had been waiting for finally rolled around: June 4, Graduation.

The ceremony started at 12:00 pm and included speeches from Superintendent Doug White, Principal Devoll, Class President Sweet, Valedictorian Paige Watterson, and many more seniors.

As is customary at graduations, each graduate was called alphabetically to receive their hard-earned diploma. The band played the national anthems of the three exchange students graduating as they stood to receive their diplomas. The seniors then got together in one large circle to throw their caps in the air as the one final act they would perform together as a class. And in that moment, the seniors were no longer students of Old Rochester, but their mark would remain on the school forever.

Old Rochester left its mark on the seniors as well. It taught its students lessons they'll never forget, and not just academic ones. Zenobia Nelles explained, "The most important thing high school has taught me is to just be kind and accepting to everybody because you just don't know what's going on in their lives and everyone's different."

But Old Rochester taught more than just kindness to the class of 2016 – it taught self-love, as Emily Faulkner explained.

"Don't be afraid to make a fool of yourself because that's how you make friends," said Faulkner.

Emily Savino agreed with the sentiment to be what makes you happy when she said, "I learned that I shouldn't really care about what other people think."

Old Rochester is a school, and teaching is what it does best, especially academics. Going through ORR has taught the graduates not only ways to study and what ways they can learn the best, it taught them how to utilize the information they've learned and continue to try their best throughout their lives. Nicole Mattson said she learned that "effort is extremely important."

Old Rochester will never be the same for the underclassmen who had this year's seniors to look up to and who are now expected to fill big shoes. The ORR

Bulldog Teams Excel in Tournament Play

*ORR Sports Update
By Patrick Briand*

Seven of ORR's eight spring sports teams competed in postseason play this week. Five of those teams competed in state tournament play, with all five winning their first round games to advance to the second round. Meanwhile, the boys' and girls' track teams capped off their seasons by participating at All-States. The most impressive win of the week belonged to girls' lacrosse, which defeated Ursuline Academy 19-11 due to their high-octane offensive attack. In addition, junior Danny Renwick of the boys' track team will advance to New England's meet after finishing sixth in the high hurdles at the All-State meet.

Baseball: On Thursday, the Bulldogs faced Hanover High at home in the first round of the D-3 State Tournament. Junior pitcher Sam Henrie pitched a gem, striking out 13 hitters in a 7-3 win. He also aided his own effort by collecting two hits and an intentional walk at the plate. A four-run sixth inning sealed the game for the 'Dogs, who received two hits apiece from juniors Henrie, Cam Hamilton, John Breault, Will Hopkins, and Kyle Brezinski, as well as sophomore Jake Asiaf. This Monday, the boys are up against Dedham High (on the road) in the second round.

Boys' Lacrosse: The Bulldogs were on the road at Tri-County Regional Voc-Tech on Wednesday to begin the state tournament. Defense proved to be the name of the game in an 11-3 win. Freshman goalie Nathaniel King racked up 12 saves, and he was supported by strong defense from juniors Justin Shay, Gavin Fox, and Nick Rego. Junior Pat Saltmarsh led the offense by scoring four goals, while fellow junior Charlie Tirrell added three. The team's leading scorer, junior Landon Gougen, scored two goals and added an assist. On Sunday, the 'Dogs took on Nantucket High on the island in Round 2. Unfortunately, they were defeated 13-4 to end their season against a strong competitor. Tirrell, Gougen, and sophomore Alex Lorenz all had a goal and an assist in the loss. This game capped off what was otherwise an extremely promising season for the Bulldogs, who return all their players next season and enter as likely favorites in the SCC due to their wide base of talent.

Girls' Lacrosse: The Lady Bulldogs played Ursuline Academy in the first round of the state tournament on Wednesday at home. Despite falling behind 4-0 early, they stayed positive and ran up a ton of goals to take a 9-6 lead at halftime. Their offensive barrage continued in the second half, and the final score was an overwhelming 19-11 in favor of ORR. Junior Emily Hiller led the team with five goals, while sophomore Alexandra Hulsebosch scored four. Sophomore midfielders Maddie Cooney and Maggie Adams scored three apiece in the big win. The girls will continue on at Cohasset High in Round 2 on Monday.

Boys' Track: Danny Renwick participated in the All-State Meet at Westfield State University on Saturday. The junior finished sixth in the 110m hurdles with a time of 15.16 and will move on to the New England meet in New Britain, Connecticut next Saturday.

Girls' Track: On Saturday, the girls' 4x800m team and senior hurdler Zoe Smith competed in the All-State Meet at Westfield State University. Smith finished 11th in the 100m hurdles with a time of 15.7, concluding an excellent senior season and career. The distance relay team – composed of sophomores Samantha Ball and Madisen Martin, junior Avery Nugent, and senior Nina Bourgeois – finished 19th but ran an extremely solid time of 9:57.8. That completed another undefeated season for girls' track, which ranked well at the state competitions and once again dominated their opponents in the SCC. With many great young runners, they are set up well for years to come at both the local and state levels.

Boys' Tennis: The Bulldogs faced Dedham High at home on Friday to kick off their run in the State Tournament. They won 5-0, dominating from start to finish. The boys' singles winners were sophomore Sam Pasquill and juniors Alex Bilodeau and Caleb Jagoda, respectively. The doubles pairings were composed of junior Josh Lerman with sophomore Jahn Pothier and juniors Max Asker and Maxxon Wolski. On Monday, the boys will face Martha's Vineyard at home as they look to continue their run.

Girls' Tennis: The girls were home against Cape Cod Academy on Thursday to begin their State Tournament run. They won a narrow match, 3-2, thanks to their fantastic doubles play. Both doubles teams won, with freshman Delaney Pothier and junior Emma Collings forming one team, and juniors Katelyn Bindas and Alexis Parker making up the other. The team's other win came from senior Morgan Middleton at #1 Singles. The girls will be staying home on Monday to face Norwell High in Round 2.

Below are the overall spring team records, followed by the conference records in wins, losses, and ties as of June 5.

TriTOWN HAPPENINGS

Everyone was 'sciencing' at the Rochester Memorial School Science Fair the evening of Monday, June 6. Some unique experiments answered some provocative questions such as which type of gum flavor lasts longer: regular or sugarless? Can we slow down global warming with cow diapers? Can you bounce an egg?

Over Memorial Day Weekend, girls from the Marion Rochester United U12 travel soccer team beat out eight other teams to claim the GU12 championship in the 20th annual Cape Cod Challenge Cup soccer tournament. The Warriors were undefeated throughout the three-day tournament. The "No Goal Patrol" led by goalies, Avrie Oliviera and Claudie Bellanger along with defenders, Mickenna Soucy, Breigh Christopher, Ava Noone and Catie Parks, shut down all offensive threats as the girls didn't give up a goal the entire tournament, recording five shut outs. The Warrior midfield support including Emma Wyman, Isabella Hunt, Rosie Lally, Emma Van Ness, Isabella Romig, Kate Feeney and Emma McGinnis kept possession of the ball, played tough defense and generated many scoring opportunities.

The "Goal Patrol" duo of Paige Long and Jen Williams scored six goals, including all five game winners. After winning their bracket and outlasting a tough Newington team in the semi finals, the Warriors faced the Yarmouth Dennis Soccer Club on Monday afternoon in downpour conditions. The two teams battled hard but once again it was the Warriors who came out on top, outlasting their rivals to take a 1-0 victory and win the tournament. The Warriors defeated teams from three states, as far away as Newington, CT, Barrington, RI and Quincy, MA the Warriors outscored their opponents 10-0 over the course of five challenging games. The Cape Cod Challenge is a MYSA-sanctioned youth soccer event and offers group competition across 22 divisions from ages U9 to U16. Rochester Historical Society presents "From Horse Drawn to Horseless Carriage" with Richard Cutler. Richard Cutler, Trustee of the Horseless Carriage Education Institute, will present the program at the Rochester Historical Society on Wednesday, June 15 at 7:00 pm at the East Rochester Church/Museum, 355 County Road.

Not long after the time of the American Civil War, clever people attempted to make carriages that could move under their own power. These vehicles were crude, but were the beginnings of what we now call automobiles. The concept was to place an engine or electric motor of some kind in a carriage and make it horseless.

The HCEI and most antique car clubs consider "horseless carriages" to be any car manufactured prior to 1916. A 40-minute video produced by the HCEI will take the viewer up from the beginning to this period of time. This is a fast-paced history lesson with some fascinating period footage showing not only cars of the period, but also the visionaries that put America on wheels.

After the video, there will be a question and answer period. Weather permitting, some examples of horseless carriages that would have been traversing the local roads (and still do!) will be available for a little show and tell for anyone who is interested.

All are welcome to this glimpse into transportation history.

MOVIE REVIEW

BOO!

By Rob Gonsalves
www.robsmovievault.com

Ghostbusters (1984). Starring Bill Murray and Dan Aykroyd. Directed by Ivan Reitman. Running time: 105 minutes. MPAA rating: PG. Showing at AMC North Dartmouth Mall on June 8 and June 12 at 2pm and 7pm.

As we approach the dawn of the Ghostbusters reboot, the original film seems to have assumed the status of a sacred text, an inviolable classic, so it's good that the thing itself is getting a brief re-release in theaters nationwide. That way, we can be reminded that the movie is ... good. Often very good. But great? There is a collaboration between Bill Murray and Harold Ramis that does achieve greatness, and that's Groundhog Day. But Ghostbusters? It's fine, funny, painless entertainment, and it benefits from co-writer Dan Aykroyd's soulful sincerity on the subject of metaphysics. It's also formulaic and made out of a bunch of older parts — which, I suppose, one could also say about Raiders of the Lost Ark, except that Ghostbusters director Ivan Reitman on his best day can't come near Steven Spielberg on his worst.

For all its wit and snark and baggy-pants-Lovecraftian mash-up, Ghostbusters is very much an '80s film, and not just because of the pop music on the soundtrack (even Air Supply pokes their heads in, and Reitman buries their song as best he can). It's a bit thoughtless politically; it has the same slob-against-snobs structure as earlier Ramis efforts like Animal House and Caddyshack, but here the stakes are much bigger, so the snobs are represented by the Environmental Protection Agency, as obvious a Reagan-era straw man as any (Reagan and his advisors loved the film). The Ghostbusters begin as a trio (Murray, Aykroyd and Ramis) and then bring in an African-American (Ernie Hudson) who seems a sop to tokenism even though he's more likely meant to be a regular-guy avatar for the many non-techies in the audience. Women are receptionists or bimbos or victims of the uncanny; even Gozer, the plot's evil entity from another dimension, is played by Serbian model Slavitz Jovan.

Most of this, though, is mitigated by a surfeit of personality. It's tempting to say that Murray, Ramis and especially Aykroyd were ideally cast at that point in their careers — the more I see the film the more the enthusiastic, emotional, uncool Aykroyd shines through as the movie's true hero by right of sheer likability.

Sigourney Weaver wrote herself a second career as a screen comedian (she'd been funny onstage for years by 1984, often in plays by Christopher Durang) and also got to be empoweringly erotic in a way that trumped Leia in the previous year's Return of the Jedi. Rick Moranis' Louis, the single-minded accountant, is a fresh and gently satirical creation, and William Atherton contributes the first of his '80s triptych of hissable jerks (continued with Real Genius and Die Hard) with that aforementioned EPA agent. Reagan-friendly as that character is, he has a point, and it's only his arrogant manner that truly marks him as deserving of ridicule and Stay-Puft glop.

The movie is '80s-slick, with the typical soundtrack selected to shift units — Ray Parker Jr. had his one hit with the theme song and was seldom heard from again — and a certain flashy, bluish-purple look courtesy of cinematographer Laszlo Kovacs. The lighting has that big-movie John Badham sheen to it, wedded to Elmer Bernstein's usual semi-parodic instrumental score he specialized in for various comedies (in, again, the '80s) involving SNL alumni. The human beats in the story are small (the biggest arc is Bill Murray's as he becomes less of a pig to deserve Sigourney Weaver's hand), but the scale is vast — though not as wild as Aykroyd originally envisioned, apparently. That's the true conflict of the movie, between shlubby humanity and filmmaking gigantism.

And yet, despite the flaws I've dwelled on here, I feel real affection for Ghostbusters. How could you not? It's goofy, funny, homey — it's genuine comfort food. It's just that I don't see a great difference, qualitatively or thematically, between it and Caddyshack or Stripes or Meatballs; it just has massive effects by Richard Edlund and company. It's probably the most kid-friendly of those four Murray vehicles (if you ignore a quick PG-rated fellatio joke), and thus it has endured as a horror-comedy alongside such peers as Gremlins and Beetlejuice. (A case could be made that Ghostbusters was a Tim Burton film a year or two early.) Its jocular DNA persists in blockbusters ranging from Men in Black to Guardians of the Galaxy, and it was one of the movies "sweded" in Be Kind Rewind. The anti-establishment supernatural farce has become, finally and inevitably, establishment.

Obituaries:

Michael D. Heath died on May 30, 2016 after a long struggle with coronary disease. He was predeceased by his parents, George D. and Ruth L. Heath of Mattapoisett and his sister, Cheryl Marcosa of Fort Myers, FL. He is survived by his brother Stephen and his wife, Meredith, of Marion. Glenn Bacon and family of St. Petersburg, FL; the love of his life and partner Susan Dwyer and her children: Alex, Anna, Sarah, Zack, Jana, and their loving dogs Shadow and Max of New Bedford.

Michael served in the US Army and worked previously at Rodney Metals of New Bedford. He loved growing up and living in Mattapoisett. He remembered knowing nearly everyone in town back then and leaving doors unlocked, very different from New Bedford. His loves were camping and canoeing in northern New England with his brother and friends, fishing, and sharing the love of camping with his stepchildren in Myles Standish State Forest more recently.

Therese Carroll Gannon died on May 17th, 2016 at age 82 in St. Simon's Island, GA, of pneumonia. Known as Terry, she was born in Worcester, MA, on October 5th, 1933 to Elizabeth and David Carroll.

Terry is survived by her brothers Shaun Carroll and Kevin Carroll; their spouses Sandee and Lucy; her sister-in-law Sue Gannon; her two children John Gannon and Julie Ritchie; their spouses Mary Gannon and Jay Ritchie; and her grandchildren John Gannon, Nicholas Gannon, Lela Gannon, and Griffin Ritchie.

Terry was predeceased by her husband John "Jack" Gannon and her brother David Carroll.

Terry lived her early life in Laconia, NH, where she loved summer camp and winter sports. Terry was an avid skier who raced on many New Hampshire slopes including Tuckerman Ravine. Later in life, Terry was known for her gracefully carved turns.

Early in her career, Terry moved to New York City and met Jack on a summer weekend at a beach house. They were soon married and off on a honeymoon to Europe. Terry loved to tell stories about that trip; she and Jack really got to know each other as he drove them along the cliffs of Majorca.

Terry also met her lifelong friend Elizabeth Griffin in New York. "Aunt Elizabeth" was a regular presence at many Gannon holidays and family events.

"Soon after marriage Jack and Terry headed to upstate New York where John was born. A couple of years later they moved to Mattapoisett, MA, just before Julie's birth."

In 1976, frustrated by her inability to find quality toys for her children, Terry founded The Toy Box. Not many women were starting businesses in 1976, but Terry believed that the children of Southeastern Massachusetts needed better toys; she was determined to provide them.

Terry worked in the toy industry from 1976 until shortly before her death. In 2013, Terry received a lifetime achievement award from the American Specialty Retail Association for her work at the Toy Box and The Good Toy Group, an organization she helped found and led for many years with her business partner Idanna Smith.

Terry was an energetic traveler and devoted grandmother who loved to attend family events. She never hesitated to visit her grandchildren for holidays, performances, games, and graduations. Right up to her last weeks, she was planning family trips to Massachusetts, Texas, and Alaska. After 32 years in Mattapoisett, Terry and Jack moved to South Dartmouth, MA, and then St. Simon's Island, GA. Terry loved living on St. Simon's and had many friends on the island. Well into her 70s, Terry picked up golf and played frequently with "The Nine-Holers". She also enjoyed playing bridge with Sue and attending weekly New England Patriots parties each Fall.

Terry's final move was to Marsh's Edge on St. Simon's, where she found many new friends and activities. In typical Terry fashion, she decided herself to make the move, negotiated the purchase, sold her house, and moved across the island to her new home. Terry loved Marsh's Edge - we are all saddened that she did not get to live there for long.

Terry lived with Chronic Lymphocytic Leukemia and underwent experimental treatments that extended her life for 7 fully-active years. She elected to be a part of a clinical drug trial that has already positively impacted others' lives.

The family asks in lieu of flowers to please consider a donation to Hospice of the Golden Isles, 1692 Glynnco Pkwy, Brunswick, GA 31525. This organization is extremely important to our family and there are not enough words to express our gratitude to Hospice of the Golden Isles.

Her Funeral Mass will be celebrated on Friday, July 8th, 2016 at 10 AM at St. Anthony's Church, Mattapoisett. Burial will follow in St. Anthony's Cemetery. Visiting hours are omitted. Arrangements are with the Saunders-Dwyer Mattapoisett Home for Funerals, 50 County Rd., Route 6, Mattapoisett. For directions and guestbook, please visit www.saunders-dwyer.com.

Hod grew up in Weston, MA where he attended Weston schools, graduated from Middlesex School in Concord, MA, Class of 1942, and Yale University, Class of 1945W in February 1948. During World War II he served in the USAAF from November 1942 to August 1945. Hod was a tail gunner on a B-17, flying with the Eighth Air Force, 333rd Bomb Group in England and was wounded on March 26, 1944. Hod spent the balance of his service in various hospitals. He was awarded the Air Medal and the Purple Heart. After his discharge he returned to Yale in September 1945 where he was a member of Zeta Psi. Hod served on the Board of Yale Record and he graduated with a BA in Economics.

Hod's business life was mostly in management at various manufacturing companies, except for six plus years when he was with Alexander Proudfoot Company, a management consultant company based in Chicago, IL. He began his career in manufacturing with The Wanskuck Company, an integrated worsted textile manufacturer in 1947 in Providence, RI. He retired 40 years later as manager of manufacturing for Standard-Thomson of Waltham, MA, a high volume original equipment manufacturer of automotive parts.

In retirement Hod spent time on a new interest, land conservation, which was introduced to him by his youngest child, Wick on the golf course in the 1980's. Hod served on the Marion Conservation Commission from 1988-1998 and was a Director of the Sippican Lands Trust (SLT) of Marion from 1990-2012 as well as its president from 1994-2004. He was a member of the Agawam Hunt Golf Club in Rumford, RI as well as Beverly Yacht club and the Kittansett Club. Hod spent many happy hours sailing "Blue Bird" his Herreshoff 12 ½ and later "Spirit of Sonoma" his Herreshoff Golden Eye in the waters of Marion and Planting Island Cove. Mary and Hod moved to Bay View Apartments in Fall River, MA in 2006.

Arrangements are in the care of Waring-Sullivan Home of Memorial Tribute at Cherry Place, Fall River. A memorial service will be arranged by the family at a later date. Burial Private. William Peter Matthes, III died unexpectedly on June 3, 2016 at Tobey Hospital, Wareham. He was 77 years old. Born in Newton and raised in Needham, he was the son of the late William P. Matthes, Jr. and Margaret K. (Fraser) Matthes. Mr. Matthes raised his three children in Walpole with his bride, Dolores. He graduated from Needham High in 1957. He served in the U.S. Navy on the submarine USS Sablefish 303. After leaving the Navy, he worked as a Needham Police Officer for 38 years. He was one of the original members of the Needham Police Underwater Dive Team. Mr. Matthes was a patrolman and a detective. He worked details for two years during his retirement. After completely retiring from the department, he was employed by Outback Engineering in Middleboro for five years.

Mr. Matthes married Dolores J. Bleiler at the Church of Incarnation in Melrose in 1968. Once retired, they moved permanently to Brandt Beach in Mattapoisett to live in the home that he had built with friends in 1964. This was the same home where he and his family had enjoyed many summers together. He loved being outdoors and made wonderful memories with his family and friends. Boating in Mattapoisett was just one of his favorite pastimes. He enjoyed tinkering in his shed and taking care of his beautiful property in Mattapoisett. His cabin in Jamaica, Vermont was his second home where he spent lots of time outdoors fishing, hunting, and camping with his son, Peter, brother, David, and many other friends and family members. A man of great faith, he was a devoted Catholic and was a communicant of St. Anthony's Church.

However, there was no greater love in Peter's life than his bride, Dolores J. (Bleiler) Matthes. More than anything else, he was a family man. He loved Dolores and their children with his whole heart and showed this love every day. Peter was enamored with his children and he was an integral part of their lives. He seemed to glow when he spent time with them and his six grandchildren. He was so proud of their accomplishments.

In addition to his bride, Dolores, Mr. Matthes leaves behind his son, Peter Matthes, his wife, Heather, and grandson, Alex, of Medway. He also leaves his daughters, Kristen Berthao, her husband Richard, and his grandchildren, Chris and Katie, of Norton, and Laura Youngquist, her husband, Jason and his grandchildren, Matthew, Meghan and Liam of Middleboro. He is survived by his brother, David Matthes, of Virginia and a niece and two nephews.

His life will be celebrated at a funeral mass that will be held on Thursday at 10 AM at Saint Anthony's Church in Mattapoisett. Burial will follow at St. Anthony's Cemetery. Calling hours at the Saunders-Dwyer Mattapoisett Home for Funerals will be held from 4-7 PM on Wednesday.

grandmother, Peggy's family always came first. She cared deeply about her friends and family and always tried to help and support others in any way that she could. Over the course of her career, she worked at Harvard University, at the Beverly Yacht Club, in special education in the Fairhaven Public School system, and in family counseling. In her later years, she volunteered at Sippican Health Care and looked after her friends. An avid and accomplished bridge player, she was a member of the Sippican Tennis Club and played the game she loved multiple times a week. Additionally, Peggy was known for her sharp intellect, curiosity, and ease in communicating with others. A particular interest of hers was politics. She was always up on the news, loved thinking about the world, and was very interested in new ideas.

Predeceased by her husband, John W. Smith, Jr., and sister, Ruth Coulson, she is survived by her son, Brooks C. Smith, daughter-in-law, Deidre P. Smith, sisters, Jane C. Aldrich and Mary Ann C. Phillips, and grandsons, Joshua L. Smith, Andrew G. Smith, his wife, Sarah P. Smith, and great granddaughter, Ava M. Smith.

A graveside service will be held on Sunday, June 12, 2016 at Old Landing Cemetery, Spring St., Marion at 3 PM. A reception will follow at the Sippican Tennis Club, 20 Holmes St., Marion. In lieu of flowers, donations in her memory may be made to a charity of one's choice.

TriTOWN HAPPENINGS

It turned out to be a gorgeous day on Tuesday, June 7, for the annual Center School Field Day activities. Relay races, hula hoops, cup stacking, parachute tossing, and even bubble-blowing kept the students busy and active across the school grounds in a constant whirlwind of motion and color. Photos by Jean Perry

The Marion Natural History Museum's after-school group learned about the science of flight, including balance, weight, and reduction of drag with Dr. William Dills. We had many happy successful lift offs and attained some very impressive heights, thanks to the rocket scientists present. The Museum wishes to thank Dr. Dills and the volunteers who helped to make this another successful program, the final program of the school calendar year. The Museum also thanks the students and parents that continue to join our classes yearly. Because of you, we are able to continue to offer more programming for both children and adults. To view and register for our summer programs, please go to www.marionmuseum.org.

The Marion Art Center presented Art In Bloom on June 3 with a showing of paintings by artists Susan Strauss of Westport and Alison Horvitz of Somerset. In collaboration with the Marion Garden Group, paintings were staged with floral arrangements to provide viewers with a unique art installation. The paintings will be on view for the next month. For their June book, "Just the Facts" Nonfiction Book Discussion Group, will be reading A Kim Jong-Il Production: The Extraordinary True Story of a Kidnapped Filmmaker, His Star Actress, and a Young Dictator's Rise to Power by Paul Fischer. Before becoming the world's most notorious dictator, Kim Jong-Il ran North Korea's film studios. Conceiving every movie made, he acted as producer and screenwriter. Despite this control, he was underwhelmed by the available talent and ordered the kidnapping of Choi Eun-Hee, South Korea's most famous actress, and her ex-husband Shin Sang-Ok, the country's most famous filmmaker. This is the story of their imprisonment and eventual escape. We will discuss this book on Thursday, June 16 at 6:30 pm. Copies are available at the desk.

The Café Parlez' selection for June is Shutter Island by Dennis Lehane. U.S. Marshall Teddy Daniels has come to Shutter Island, home of the Ashecliffe Hospital for the Criminally Insane to find an escaped patient, a murderer named Rachel Solando, as a hurricane bears down on the island. But nothing at Ashecliffe is as it seems, and neither is Teddy Daniels. Is he there to find a missing patient or has he been sent to look into rumors of Ashecliffe's radical approach to psychiatry? Or is there another, more personal reason why he has come there? We will discuss this book on Thursday, June 30 at 6:30 pm. Books are

SALOME'S STARS

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Lots of possibilities begin to open up by midweek. Some seem more appealing than others. But wait for more facts to emerge later on before you consider which to choose.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Bravo to the determined Bovine. While others might give up, you continue to search for answers. Expect your Taurean tenacity to begin paying off by week's end.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You might want to consider stepping back from the task at hand for a while. This could help you get a better perspective on what you've done and what still needs to be done.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your keen Cancerian insight should help you determine whether a new offer is solid or just more fluff 'n' stuff. The clues are all there, waiting for you to find them.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Being ignored is difficult for any proud Leo or Leona. But pushing yourself back into the spotlight might be unwise. Instead, let things work themselves out at their own pace.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Trying to uncover a colleague's secret under the pretext of showing concern is ill-advised. Control your curiosity in order to avoid raising resentment in the workplace.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Expect to hear good news about a loved one. Also, be prepared for some changes in several family relationships that could develop from this lucky turn of events.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Some surprises are expected to accompany a number of changes that will continue through part of next week. At least one could involve a romantic situation.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You might be upset by some of your critics. But most of your associates continue to have faith in your ability to get the job done, and done well.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A workplace goal that suddenly seems out of reach is no problem for the sure-footed Goat, who moves steadily forward despite any obstacles placed in his or her way.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Uncertainty about who is right and who isn't might keep you from making a clear-cut decision. Wait until you know more about what you're being asked to decide.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Be careful to keep your emotions in check when dealing with a demanding personal situation. You need to set an example of strength for others to follow.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have an extraordinary ability to rally people to do their best. You would be a treasure as a teacher.

Animal Advice

Jay Gould, DVM

Both my cat and dog are coming into the house with a lot of ticks. I thought that the ticks would disappear now that summer is here.

Ticks do like cool weather. Tick season peaks in spring and fall however, some ticks can be found in summer and in the winter if the temperature is mild.

So what can I do to protect my pet from all of these ticks?
The main products available are effective against ticks are Frontline, Advantage and Seresto for the use on dogs and cats, and Advantix for dogs. All are available through your veterinarian.

What diseases can these ticks transmit?
Dogs are susceptible to Lyme disease and Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever, while cats may develop feline infectious Anemia.

tragic mistakes. Of the 84 seamen aboard the tankers, 70 would be rescued. Tougias tells the tale of the men, the storm, the wrecks, and the four young Coast Guardsmen who launched themselves over Chatham Bars and into the storm to save the 32 souls stranded on the stern of the Pendleton.

Tougias has said, "This event was – and still is – the greatest, most daring sea rescue ever performed by the Coast Guard, and it happened right here off the New England coast. I like doing these programs because I transport the audience into the heart of the storm, so they can ask, 'What would I have done?' With a slide presentation, the viewer can visually relive the adventure of it."

Tougias, author and co-author of 24 books, recently published So Close To Home, the story of a hard-working, blue collar family in the post-Depression years. When war broke out, they unknowingly entered the crosshairs of an ugly battle taking place right off America's shores, sailing into the path of a German U-boat that was on a killing spree through unprotected waters near major port cities. So Close to Home takes you into both the struggle to get ahead as experienced by the Downs family and the U-boats' race against the American war machine.

The presentation is suitable for all ages, and a book-signing will follow the program.

The Lighthouse Fund is an endowed fund of the Old Rochester Educational Foundation Inc. which means that it is a permanent source of funding for the schools. Only the return on the investment will be awarded, while the remaining money grows for the future.

SHERMAN'S LAGOON

for the past two years.

Brian has an extensive history of working with children of all ages. Substituting at Center and Old Hammondtown Schools and being a counselor at the Silvershell Summer Program for the past 4 years have provided Brian with a significant amount of experience working with children in grades Pre-K through 6th. In addition, being a high school and college Peer Leader as well as a biology tutor, has offered Tranfaglia the opportunity to work with young adults as well. Serving as head counselor last year, Brian is eager to take on the position of Coordinator and is looking forward to another fun, successful summer. Brian will be responsible for the day-to-day operations of the Marion Summer at Silvershell program, coordinating activities for program participants, supervising staff, and organizing weekly field trips to area "fun spots." Want to join Brian this summer? There is still time to register. Visit www.marionrecreation.com to learn more about summer programs.

There is no charge for the meal, although donations are gratefully accepted. Doors open at 4:30 pm and supper will be served at 5:00 pm. Invite a friend or family member. All are welcome.
